A. AND M. EXPERIMENT STATION CROPS GOOD

Far Better Than Crops in This and Adjoining Counties, Showing Advantages of Scientific Farming Methods.

Practical demonstration of the superiority of scientific farming may be had by a comparison of growing crops on the A. and M. College and the State experiment station farms at College Station with the crops on farms in Brazos County and adjacent counties. Corn on the college farm is a foot higher than that on surrounding farms and has a bigger and better developed stalk and a superior color.

All doubt as to whether farming can be practiced successfully here is vanishing rapidly and the prediction is made that Farm Superintendent Holmes will harvest bigger corn, oat, sorghum, and forage crops than are grown anywhere in this section of the State, and far in advance of those harvested by the average farmer on more fertile soils.

On the college farm Holmes has 80 acres in corn for the crib, 40 in June corn, 40 in sorghum, and 61 in oats which will be fed in the sheaf. June corn and sorghum will be used for filling the two 200-ton silos and the oat land will be replanted with June corn for the second filling of these silos.

All crops on the experiment farm are looking unusually good, and B. Youngblood, director of State experiment stations, is expecting unusually heavy yields. Vetch, barley, emmer-speltz wheat, oats, all are looking good and are mature. Mr. Youngblood is growing Indian corn and June corn, sorghum legume and straight sorghum for use in his silos. These crops will be placed in different silos and tests on feeding for beef production will be conducted.

"I have never seen better looking crops than those on the experiment farm and the college farm," was the remark of Mr. Youngblood today after he had ridden over the farms.

AGED NEGRO FELL DEAD

A telephone message from Dr. G. E. Hill of Edge this morning stated that "Uncle" Rufus Daniels, an old negro man, fell dead near that place yesterday. He was cutting oats for Mr. Cy Kootz, and the stroke was so sudden he fell forward dead, never releasing his hold on his mowing blade.

He was an old man, about sixty-five years of age, and was held in high esteem by both white and black.

A POWERFUL DRAMATIC STORY

A. AND M. BOYS TO APPEAR IN MOVIES

Pictures To Be Made by Smith Bros. and Will Go Out to Various Circuits of Texas.

Students at the Agricultural and Mechanical College are to appear soon in moving pictures. A contract has been let to Smith Bros. studio of this city, representing the Gaumont Picture Company, to make pictures of the physical equipment at the college and of student activities and student life. These pictures when completed will be sent out on the various "movie" circuits in Texas.

Military drills and formations, athletic contests, and various other student activities will be portrayed in these pictures.

The operators will begin their work this week and the film will be ready for circulation within a very few weeks.

The pictures will be shown merely to acquaint patrons of the school with the work their boys are doing. Industrial work at the college also will be featured and the picture is intended to give the history of the student's life from the time he enters college until he has finished his course. Another object is to encourage patronage of the big State school.

DISLOCATES HIS JAW WHENEVER HE YAWNS

St. Louis Man Has Suffered That Mishap Five Times Within Four Years.

St. Louis, Mo.—A long-drawn-out yawn is one luxury in which Edward Riedel can not indulge safely. He has tried it five times during the last four years, and each occasion dislocated his jaw. He is now suffering from a severe dislocation of the lower maxillary on the right side.

Riedel, who is a night watchman, says:

"The first time I dislocated my jaw was about four years ago. I went to yawn and when I got my mouth open I couldn't shut it. Four times since then I have had a similar experience. It has really become annoying.

"I went to a physician and he told me I must not yawn under any circumstances. Now, when I go to a picture show I have to be careful. After a person looks at the pictures for a while he usually gets drowsy. Well, here's one person that doesn't.

"If I feel the least bit sleepy I immediately leave the show or hold my face in my hands so I can't open my mouth. Many an interesting picture I've missed because I was afraid to take a chance with my face.

"The worst part of the whole business is that I want to yawn all the time. I don't notice such signs in other people. I suppose I want to gape just because I can't. The desire all the time is almost overpowering. It was that way last Sunday. Before I knew what had happened my mouth was open and wouldn't go shut."—New York World.
